

I think I actually did a pretty good job when it comes to the time I spent working on this. I just ended up submitting this late since I was overloaded with work from other classes the week this was due, so I don't really have much to say about that.

This homework was pretty understandable and straightforward to me, so not much the TAs could've done there.

I'm still trying to get used to doing stuff in Java again, so I learned a good bit about classes, keywords, and some functions. I also got some decent exposure to specs which helps me understand them more.